XP-Values

1. Junjie Zhu – Courage

Junjie had this XP value. Junjie took the initiative to begin learning all of the new technologies necessary to complete our project. Junjie picked up a difficult functionality in booking and made sure he covered all test cases related with it. He resolved each issue with complexity and performance in mind and considered all potential outcomes and was always ready to take new challenges on..

2. Sahib Bhatia – Communication

Sahib displayed XP value communication during this project. He made sure we are always connecting, setting up communication channels, making sure weekly scrum was done every week. It enabled us to keep track of our progress after each sprint. He also communicated well with backend to integrate his UI module with backend.

3. Utkarsh Pant – Feedback

Utkarsh was a firm believer in this XP core concept. So that we could go back and forth between sprints and make incremental changes with each sprint, he provided frequent feedback between them. He had taken the initiative to limit the amount of time spent on each activity that is reliant on another one. He also assigned a priority to the chores that needed to be completed.

4. Rajat Masurkar – Simplicity

Rajat adhered to the XP core principle of simplicity. Throughout the project's duration, he was responsible for ensuring that the process workflow was maintained. He worked on the billing functionality and integrated it with Junjie's booking module with ease. Throughout the project, he provided perfect openness, honesty, and ultimate dependability and always delivered his tasks on time.
